SUMMARY

A motivated and detail-oriented software engineer with experience in a diverse range of technologies. My expertise includes front-end development using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript, with a focus on React for dynamic web applications. On the backend, I specialize in Python and Flask, crafting robust server-side solutions. Additionally, I am proficient in Java development, applying strong coding practices to build efficient and scalable applications. I have a solid foundation in database management using SQL, ensuring efficient data handling. With a comprehensive understanding of software engineering principles, I am adept at delivering scalable and maintainable solutions tailored to meet project requirements.
